GUIDE FOR SUBSTANTIAL AND
SUPERVISED ANALYTICAL WRITING (SAW) RESEARCH

Find this Guide online at http://library.law.yale.edu/guide-substantial-and-supervised-analytical-writing-saw-research or email Julie Graves Krishnaswami, julie.krishnaswami@yale.edu.

This student guide for Substantial and SAW research directs you to library resources, librarians and legal databases for assistance with the following:

- where to go for more research help
- selecting a topic
- performing a preemption check
- research management

This guide is written with the assumption that you have a working knowledge of both Westlaw Next and Lexis Advance. In most databases, you have the option of using either the Terms & Connectors (Boolean) search method or the Natural Language search method. To arrange for individual or group instruction on Westlaw, contact Estee, the West academic account manager at for the Yale Law School, at: estee.waxman@thomsonreuters.com. For help with Lexis Advance, contact the Lexis representative, Kauther, at: kauther.badr@lexisnexis.com. For a Bloomberg password and help with the Bloomberg database, contact Lee at inermelstein@bna.com.

For library research, or assistance with legal research in general, you have various options:

1. Describe your research topic: We can assign you a personal librarian based on subject specialty from here: http://library.law.yale.edu/research/appointment-request.
2. Contact the Reference Department: see the Law Library’s website for hours, contact us through email, reference.law@yale.edu, instant message us from the Law Library’s website.
3. Take a research course. We recommend Advanced Legal Research (ALR), an advanced exploration of the specialized methods and sources of legal research in some of the following areas: administrative law; case finding; computer-assisted research; constitutional law and history; court rules and practice materials; foreign and international law; legislative history; and statutory research. Students use their own research topic to create a pathfinder or complete assignments for this course. Contact Julie Graves Krishnaswami at julie.krishnaswami@yale.edu for more information about ALR. We also offer specialized research courses in foreign and international research, corporate law research, regulatory research, and empirical research methods.

For advice on research management, contact Jason Eiseman at jason.eiseman@yale.edu or Jordan Jefferson at Jordan.a.Jefferson@yale.edu or visit our research management guide at: http://library.law.yale.edu/research-management-and-citation.

CURRENT OR EMERGING TRENDS IN LAW
Researching current or emerging trends in the law can help you find an issue or important recent decision that could form the basis of a paper
1. BNA – latest news and analysis in various areas of the law:

NEWSROOM DATABASES
1. Westlaw Next’s News page contains nearly 12,000 newspapers, magazines, journals, newswires, newsletters, and transcripts of television and radio programs. Examples include newspapers such as the New York Times, magazines such as Business Week, and transcripts from programs such as 60 Minutes. You can use these databases to retrieve the latest business information and news. Navigate to the News page from the homepage; News is in the leftmost column.
2. Lexis Advance News & Business tab has the largest news database available - Over 20,000 sources, including TV & radio news transcripts and blogs. From the homepage, click on “All Content Types,” directly under the red bar. Then, select “News” and “Legal News.” Run your search in the search box.
3. Lexis Advance Mealey’s Litigation News Publications: the foremost publisher in litigation news and is widely read by trial and appellate litigators for the most cutting edge cases. To find this source, follow these steps:
   a. Click on Browse Sources;
   b. Enter “mealey” into the search box under Sources and select “OK;”
   c. Find the publication you’d like to search;
   d. Click on it and select, “Add this source to search” and enter your search terms in the red box.
5. For more historic or local newspaper coverage, visit the Newspaper Archive database (http://access.newspaperarchive.com/) or Yale University’s News page: (http://www.library.yale.edu/newspapers/). You can also search the catalog for newspapers by title: http://morris.law.yale.edu/.

CIRCUIT SPLITS – Remember that it is generally recommended to stay away from “circuit split” articles:
Selecting a Topic Involving an Unresolved Issue or Circuit Split
New legal issues and issues causing a split in opinion among the federal circuit courts provide interesting subject matter for papers:
1. BNA United States Law Week for analysis of current and most significant federal and state cases. This and the Supreme Court Weekly discuss unresolved circuit splits. http://news.bna.com/lwln
3. In Westlaw Next, enter Preview of U.S. Supreme Court Cases into the white search box and enter the following search string into the search box: ADV: circuit /5 split.
4. In Lexis Advance, enter circuit /2 split! or disagree! into the main red search box. Then, use the filter on the left and select Federal and narrow the time to the last year. Click “Overview” on top right of screen to view the Lexis editorialized enhancement.

PREEMPTION CHECKING
http://library.law.yale.edu/research/preemption-checking

Legal Indexes – from the Library databases page at: http://library.law.yale.edu/research/legal-databases
1. Current Index to Legal Periodicals: Weekly editions of the Current Index to Legal Periodicals, which indexes articles from more than 300 legal publications (VPN required for off-campus access).
2. Index to Legal Periodicals: Index of law review articles and book reviews since 1908 (VPN required for off-campus access).
3. Legal Trac: Covers law review articles and bar journals since the 1980s (VPN required for off-campus access).
4. Index to Foreign Legal Periodicals: Covers journals on foreign and international law (VPN required for off-campus access).
Working Papers and Pending Articles
To determine whether pending, not-as-yet-published legal scholarship preempts your work on your note topic, look at SSRN.com, which is reachable from the Law Library's Legal Databases page. To find law related articles, use the LSN, the legal scholarship network. The LSN homepage provides a link to a list of law and law-related journals and working papers as well abstracts of materials they have accepted for publication but have not yet published.

Law Professor Blogs: http://www.lawprofessorblogs.com/
Law Professor Blogs is a network of blogs designed from the ground-up to assist law professors in their scholarship and teaching. Each site focuses on a particular area of law and combines both (1) regularly-updated permanent resources and links, and (2) daily news and information of interest to law professors.

DEVELOPING YOUR TOPIC
Once you’ve chosen a topic, you can begin the research process. Here are some suggestions for starting points:

AMERICAN LAW REPORTS
American Law Reports (ALR) contains annotations that review and analyze the complete body of state and federal law. The attorneys who write the annotations search relevant sources, collect and analyze the law on the issue, and prepare a detailed discussion of the general principles deduced from their research. Each ALR article is a complete legal memorandum on a particular legal issue. Use the American Law Reports database (ALR) to gather background information, determine the applicable primary law, and find leads to other secondary materials such as forms and practice guides. American Law Reports are available on Lexis Advance and Westlaw Next.

FOREIGN AND INTERNATIONAL LAW:
1. International Law in Domestic Courts: http://www.oxfordlawreports.com/. An online case reporting service that brings you the most important public international law issues being decided in domestic courts around the world. The most significant cases are identified and thoroughly analyzed. Full text judgments are included, as are authoritative English translations of key passages. Fully searchable database; browse by country, key word, or topic.
3. Index to Foreign Legal Periodicals (IFLP): http://library.law.yale.edu/research/legal-databases
4. EISIL: http://www.eisil.org/. Use this site to easily locate the highest quality primary materials, authoritative web sites and helpful research guides to international law on the Internet.
A pre-eminent and comprehensive work covering the central and essential topics in international law.
